

PRESCRIBED GRAZING ARE HERBIVORES THE "NATURAL" CHOICE?

Farmers and land managers have long understood that grazing animals impact the plant community upon which they graze. Additionally, it is well understood that managed grazing (i.e. altering stocking rate, type of livestock, timing and duration of grazing, and return interval) can be used to achieve specific ecological results. Jesse Bennett will provide a general overview of Rx grazing and detail how Driftless Land Stewardship LLC's goat herd has provided an additional resource for managing natural communities.
